Home invasion in Southport: marijuana may have been the thieves' target

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Three men with handguns are sought by police after they entered a house on Sherman Island Road on February 25, assaulting a pair of men inside and making off with about $1,420 worth of electronics.

According to a police report, the crime was reported at 10:18 p.m. from the Southport house.

Three suspects, each carrying a handgun, "physically assaulted the two victims inside, and stole several items. All suspects brandished handguns at both victims, and physically assaulted both victims with their handguns."

Lieutenant Tod Sockman of the West Sacramento Police Department elaborated for the News-Ledger:

"Three (suspects) wearing jackets and gloves broke into an attached garage, and then the house, while the occupant and his roommate were home," said Sockman. "They were looking for marijuana -- they kept repeating over and over, 'Where's the weed? Where's the weed?'"

Apparently, they were at the wrong house.

"There was no weed," said Sockman.

The victims were a pair of men age 50 and 52, according to the report. One suffered a black eye and reports he may have been hit on the back of the head with a handgun.

Taken in the robbery were a $600 iPhone, a $250 car stereo and a $550 laptop computer.

There were no detailed descriptions of the suspects, and no escape car was seen.

Life without parole for 2006 cold-case killing

Juan Antonio Gonzales has received a sentence of "life without the possibility of parole" for the killing of a nightclub janitor in West Sacramento in 2006, reports the office of Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig.

Former cop faces life in prison

Sergio Alvarez was also a West Sacramento husband and father before his arrest for sexually assaulting women contacted on police patrol at night

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A Yolo County jury on Thursday announced "guilty" verdicts on 18 felony counts related to sexual assault and kidnapping, in a case involving former West Sacramento Police Officer Sergio Alvarez, reports the Yolo County D.A.'s office. He faces a sentence of up to life in prison.

The guilty verdicts included charges such as kidnapping, rape and sexual assault. Alvarez contacted the women while patrolling by himself during the graveyard shift in West Sacramento from 2011-2012.

Identified in court documents only by their initials, the women were described by local police as women in "marginal' situations, but not necessarily prostitutes. He forced them to perform sex acts in his cruiser or in remote urban locations, often threatening to arrest them if they did not comply.

Jurors deadlocked on nine other charges, including those involving a sixth alleged victim.

Alvarez, 38, was arrested a year ago, and pleaded not guilty.

His defense attorney, J. Toney, conceded misdeeds by the officer, denying some charges and saying that other relationships involving the alleged victims and Alvarez had been consensual. Alvarez himself – formerly a West Sacramento family man – admitted having consensual sexual relations with three of the victims, but denied any contact with the others. His attorney suggested the victims hope to profit from a civil lawsuit following the criminal case.

Toney could not immediately be reached for comment yesterday.

The city may indeed have to pay out for these misdeeds in civil damages involving victims of the assaults. Litigation is now underway on behalf of Alvarez's victims.

Alvarez will be sentenced April 4 by Judge Timothy Fall, and he faces up to multiple life sentences.

At a press conference, prosecutor Garrett Hamilton said it was premature to say whether the District Attorney's office will retry Alvarez on the nine counts on which the jury couldn't agree.

West Sacramento Police Chief Thomas McDonald – who was not in the department at the time of Alvarez's arrest – issued a written statement after the conviction:

"While I cannot comment on the details of the case due to pending civil litigation, I would like to state that Mr. Alvarez's actions were reprehensible," he said. "However, the citizens of West Sacramento can rest assured that Alvarez's actions do not reflect the ethics, professionalism and integrity of the men and women of their police department. . . My thoughts go out to the victims and their families."

McDonald has also said that West Sacramento's police department has reviewed policies and procedures to try to keep something like this from happening again.

Launch party for park, water facility

■ Little park boasts a climbing structure and a location to serve residents in burgeoning Bridge District of West Sac

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento officials cut the ribbon Friday morning on a new neighborhood park and water storage facility.

The Jerome D. Barry Park is located on Ballpark Drive next to the Ironworks subdivision and near Raley Field. It's named after a man who straddled the 19th and 20th centuries in West Sacramento, playing professional baseball in his youth and then serving as a local justice of the peace from 1913-1925 in the "Washington Township" of northeastern West Sacramento.

The park name was proposed by the West Sacramento Historical Society, represented at Friday's celebration by its president, Thom Lewis. Lewis said of Jerome Barry:

"In his remarkable life, he was a justice of the peace in Washington Township, he was a foreman for Southern Pacific and he pitched for the Sacramento Altas," as well as serving as a volunteer fighter and as a judge.

Drizzly weather pushed most of the park celebration indoors – into the spanking new water pump station located next to the little park.

The water pump station at the new park on Ballpark Drive is usually off-limits to visitors -- although you can peek inside from one of several "portholes" in the building's wall. Above, visitors stroll the workings during Friday's grand opening at the park.
The adjacent water tank is lit up at night with colorful strips of LED lights, which are relatively energy efficient. You can see the decorations from the nearby freeway.

Mayor Christopher Cabaldon used his public remarks to tout the city's redevelopment of the surrounding "Bridge District" area into a new urban place that will feature housing opportunities to suit different preferences and different stages of life. He now lives in a townhome in the adjacent Ironworks subdivision.

"As we build more urban homes," said Cabaldon, "we need more open spaces as well – more opportunities for recreation, for reflection, and for dogs to run."

He thanked State of California officials for chipping in $23 million to help ready the

A Westacre Road woman reported her car had been burglarized three times in the past two weeks. Nothing was missing – but during the most recent break-in, the burglar tampered with the ignition system. Now the car wouldn't start.

Two air conditioning units were stolen during the night from a Ramco Street business.

A man in a West Capitol Avenue motel room reported a burglary. He had returned to the room to find the "door had been kicked in and his keys and black zippered 'Wells Fargo' bag of money had been taken."

Then, a 42-year old man from a nearby room came in, claimed to have taken the money, and punched the victim. The victim showed an officer that he had suffered a broken tooth and a cut on the chin.

Police contacted the suspect in his room. The man "consented to a protective sweep of the room, where a black zippered 'Wells Fargo' bag was located in plain view on top of a nightstand."

The suspect was then arrested. During a further search, two glass drug-smoking pipes were located, as well as keys that the suspect admitted belonged to the victim.

Feb. 26, 6:15 p.m.

A 5th Street woman told police that during an argument, her adult son pushed a trash can into her car and kicked her car – leaving a dent in a rear door. While doing this, the man yelled, "I will burn your house down and f__ your car up."

The man was gone when police arrived, but found later in front of the apartment and arrested.

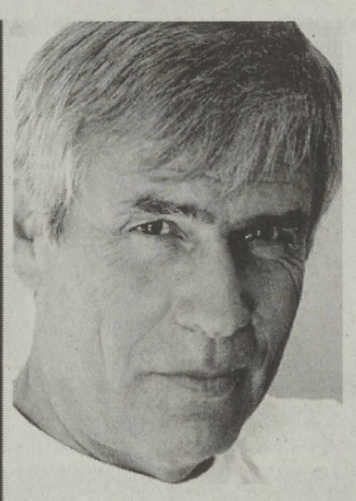
There's no sport quite like pee-wee baseball

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Note: For the past few weeks I've been going over to a little hidden-away baseball diamond at Southport Elementary School to watch two of my grandsons practice with their teammates for their upcoming West Sacramento Little League season. Their team, called the Raptors, is being coached by my son-in-law and oldest son, which should turn out to be a hoot in itself, and watching them work really hard to get the Raptors all squared away for Opening Day suddenly reminded of the following column, which was penned almost 20 years ago:

The coming of spring in the Sacramento Valley means different things to different people. To the sun worshiper, it means that endless months of depressing rain and white skin are almost over; to allergy-sufferers, it means it's time to start sneezing and blowing your nose again; to the lover of gardening, it's time to prepare the soil for all that glorious plant growth that is just around the corner; and to the local parent of young boys, it's time to try and find a way out of being their Little League baseball manager or coach.

This year, however, my youngest son, Kyle, has talked me into signing up to manage his pee-wee baseball team (the Reds) in the West Sacramento Little League. His argument was simple and effective. Since I had managed his older brother's pee-wee teams, I owed him.

"If you're the manager, Dad," he said with deep conviction, "I'll get to be the pitcher!"

"But it doesn't exactly work that way, Kyle," I tried to explain. "Plus in pee-wees, there is no pitcher. Everyone hits off of a tee."

"Right," said my son, obviously starting to question just what kind of manager I was going to be if I didn't even know that you need a pitcher to play baseball.

"Kyle," I said, "to tell you the truth, I'm a little burned out on Little League baseball coaching. Maybe you could wait another year? You're only six, you know."

"But Dad," he said with his most pathetic voice, "that's what you said last year." Then he looked up at me with those big brown eyes of his and a facial expression that left no doubt he was thinking those awful words which all parents fear: "You love my brothers (or sisters) more than me!"

So, once again, it was time to break out the fluff balls and undersized mitts and prepare my ears for that awful aluminum "clink" of the bat. Thankfully, by the time I had called all twelve of the Reds and told them about their first practice, I was beginning to feel some of the old fun and excitement which pee-wee baseball brings out in almost everyone who participates. And with all the phone calls completed, I sat back for a few minutes and tried to remember some of the things required of a successful pee-wee manager.

First, you have to be really good at tying double-knots. Pee-wees are, for the most part, six and seven year olds, and almost all of them will show up for every practice (and the majority of their games) with at least one shoe untied.

Second, you have to be great at finding things. Pee-wees lose their hats, their bats, their gloves, their snack-bar money, and even their parents from time to time.

Third, you have to be able to anticipate potty breaks. This can usually be done by noticing how the players on my team are standing. If they are squirming, holding their legs tightly together, and making funny faces, you need to get them over to the bathroom ASAP!

Fourth, you have to be accomplished at being able to talk some sweet, unsuspecting soul into being the team mother. She is the person who has to, among many other things, organize the team float for the Opening Day parade, get other busy mothers to work in the snack bar, and collect all the money from the candy sale. This person always ends up being a saint in my eyes.

Fifth, you have to be able to quickly establish a set of often-repeated rules, the most important being that only one pee-wee at a time (the hitter) can have a bat in his or her hands. There is simply nothing quite as frightening as watching five or six eager young pee-wees with baseball bats in their hands warming up for batting practice in the same area at the same time.

Sixth, you have to be able to cheerfully accept the fact that the attention span for a perfectly normal pee-wee is approximately 30 seconds, and on warm, sunny afternoons with interesting-looking puffy white clouds floating above them, even that number drops dramatically.

Seventh, you have to have energetic adult base coaches with loud and distinctive voices. Pee-wees love to get on base and race around the diamond, but they're not always sure just when to take off or what direction to go. A good base coach can get them pretty skilled at running to first base instead of third when they hit the ball, but only a great one can organize things from that point on.

And finally, and maybe most important of all, you have to be able to make all the team's parents and grandparents truly believe that pee-wee baseball isn't the big show, and that it's not about winning and losing, but rather riding around in a homemade float on Opening Day, free after-the-game popcorn and snow cones from the snack bar, pizza parties with teammates, good sportsmanship, and learning to love the game.

"Dad," said my six-year old son as he wound himself up in front of me in his new Reds baseball jersey and released his best imaginary fastball, "you know what?"

"What, Kyle?"

"The Reds are going to kick butt!"

infrastructure in the Bridge District. The state was represented at the grand opening by Anna Caballero, Secretary of Business, Consumer Services and Housing under Governor Jerry Brown.

Caballero praised the city's work in the Bridge District. She also delivered a message about drought and water conservation, saying the governor had charged his department heads with promoting water conservation at every public opportunity.

"It could rain almost every other day between now and May," said Caballero, and we still wouldn't be out of the drought. The governor has asked us all to reduce our water use by 20 percent."

"This project," she noted of the park and water pump station, "captures rain water."

The pump house's wing-shaped roofs indeed are designed to catch rain water and save it for irrigation.

Other speakers at Friday's event included City Manager MartinTuttle, Ironworks homeowners association president Ron Price and city parks commission member Bernadette Austin.

Yolo Public Defender's office collects clothing

Workers in the office of Yolo County Public Defender Tracie Olson have just concluded a clothing drive to support "Fourth & Hope," Woodland's cold-weather homeless shelter.

The drive was enough of a success that the defender's office quickly ran out of room to store the donated goods – a problem remedied with space at the sheriff's offices.

"The support local partners threw behind this project along the way was overwhelming," said Olson. "Additionally, when the project ended, it was the sheriff's deputies who literally formed a line to move the clothing items from the holding cell to the truck that took the clothes away."

Woodland and Davis police departments, and court and other county employes, also helped.

The collection was sold by the pound to California Clothing Recyclers, with all cash going to the homeless shelter.

Kaiser offers free cataract surgeries

Need cataract surgery, but can't afford it? Kaiser Permanente may be able to help. The health care provider is offering screenings to patients who may qualify to have the procedure done at no cost.

The screenings, by appointment only, will be on Saturday April 12 at the Kaiser Permanente Point West Medical Offices, 1650 Response Road, Sacramento.

The surgeries are part of Mission Cataract USA, an annual program in which participating doctors provide the sight-restoring procedure to hundreds of people across the nation who have no health insurance and can't afford the operation. This is Kaiser Permanente's 19th year in the program. Kaiser Permanente physicians and staff will perform as many as 20 free cataract surgeries on eligible individuals in early May.

Screening appointments can be made through April 3 or until the slots fill up, whichever comes first. To sign up for the screening, for information, call: (916) 973-7159.

Four arrested on meth charges after local police work with FBI

West Sacramento police have just finished working with the FBI's "Safe Streets" team on a local enforcement effort.

While details weren't quite ready to be released as the News-Ledger went to press yesterday, the W.S.P.D.'s Lieutenant Tod Sockman did pass along a few details:

"There were arrest warrants served on four known 'Norteno' gang members," said Sockman. "All four are in custody. The warrants were for possession and sale of methamphetamine."

Gonzales was convicted earlier this year after a break in the "cold case" investigation for the murder/robbery near the west end of West Capitol.

Gonzales, a 29-year old from Sacramento, had been found guilty of first degree murder, with the "special circumstance" of killing during a robbery. He robbed and shot Alfonso Prado, a janitor at Ortega's West bar, on June 18, 2006.

According to the D.A.'s office, Prado was cleaning the bar at 4205 West Capitol Avenue in West Sacramento when "unknown intruders" robbed him and shot him in the chest, killing him.

"Three days later, the Sacramento Police Department recovered a handgun and entered identifying information into the National Ballistics Network," said the D.A.'s office. "Two years later, a 'cold hit' established that the gun, which was last in the possession of an associate of defendant Gonzalez, was the weapon used to kill Mr. Prado. A year later, the Department of Justice Criminalistics Laboratory received a 'cold hit' identification establishing that a small amount of blood found at the scene matched DNA from defendant Gonzales."

Gonzales was sentenced Monday by Judge Stephen L. Mock.

Responding to an inquiry from the News-Ledger, a spokesman said the department hopes for a solution in early 2014.

We hope to again be able to search through more material when compiling this weekly log.

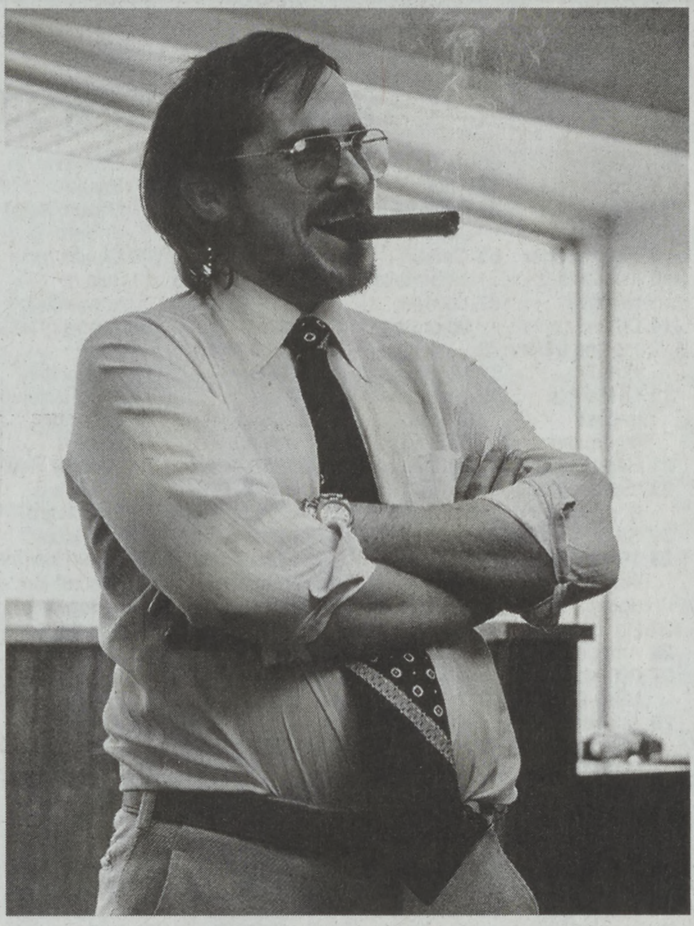
BY SAM STRUCKHOFF



Christian Bale in "American Hustle"

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Frozen" (PG) -- In Disney's latest animated musical adventure, Anna (voiced by Kristen Bell) and her big sister Elsa (Idina Menzel) are inseparable as little girls. Anna is a joyous free spirit. Elsa can magically conjure snow and ice with her hands -- a power she can't control during bouts of intense emotion. As an adult, Elsa isolates herself atop a mountain and shrouds the realm in eternal winter. Anna must go on a quest to speak with Elsa and get her to lift the snowy curse.

"Frozen" reaches the same caliber as previous Disney princess flicks. The musical numbers aren't as catchy, perhaps, but they are poignant and emotional. Comic relief comes from a snowman named Olaf (Josh Gad), who has big plans to frolic in the sun.

"American Hustle" (R) -- Romance, scandals, feds and sprawling moral ambiguity come together perfectly in this inspired-by-a-true-story tale about con artists in love. It's the late 1970s, and Irving Rosenfeld (a barely recognizable Christian Bale) is an endearing, pot-bellied grifter who runs a few schemes around town. Irving and his sly, silky lover/partner in crime (Amy Adams) are caught red-handed by a try-hard FBI agent (Bradley Cooper with a perm), and their only way out is to help the feds pull an even bigger con.

Director David O. Russell ("Silver Linings Playbook") gives the whole moral mess an underhanded charm. The top-notch cast -- which includes Jennifer Lawrence and Jeremy Renner -- all seem to be on their A-game for the whole runtime.

"Saving Mr. Banks" (PG) -- Walt Disney (Tom Hanks) promised his daughters that he would turn their favorite literary character, Mary Poppins, into the movie of their dreams. P.L. Travers (Emma Thompson), the author who created the magical nanny, vowed that she would never let her beloved character be gobbled up by Hollywood phonies. Leave it to Disney (and Hanks) to launch the greatest charm offensive the world has ever known. It's just like any good theme-park attraction: We already know where it ends, but the ride is worth standing in line for.

"A Touch of Sin" (NR)-- In four different parts of modern China, four different working-class people are pushed over the edge. Each story is pulled from the headlines of industrialized China. In separate turns, writer/director Zhang Ke Jia explores the ripples of rapid change, and how corruption precipitates violence. Critics have been uniformly enchanted by this film -- it's beautiful, violent and thoughtful -- and it raises more questions than it attempts to answer.

"The Heart Health Bible: The 5-Step Plan to Prevent and Reverse Heart Disease"
by John M. Kennedy, M.D.
(Da Capo, $15.99 softbound)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

It's no secret that heart disease is the No. 1 killer of men and women in the United States, claiming nearly 1 million lives each year. The irony is that it's also one of the most preventable diseases.

Dr. John M. Kennedy, a board member of the American Heart Association and professor of cardiology at Harbor-UCLA Medical Center, has successfully helped thousands of patients with his pioneering approach to preventative cardiology. Many of the techniques and strategies are outlined in his new book: "The Heart Health Bible."

According to Dr. Kennedy, many of us have lost sight of the big picture by placing too much emphasis on fad diets. While weight and food intake are important, many diet plans are complicated, and more than a few simply don't work effectively.

Dr. Kennedy outlines a more holistic approach, including stress reduction, a smart diet and regular physical activity, which can add to our overall health and longevity. With some 60 million Americans suffering from heart disease, changes in our behavior are essential to putting us on a sensible pathway that not only can help to prevent heart disease, but actually reverse it!

The five steps of his H-E-A-R-T plan are: 1) Healing blood pressure by learning to relax, adding aerobic exercise to our daily routine and decreasing salt; 2) Energizing the heart with exercise; 3) Acting on fat by using a BMI calculator and making better food choices; 4) Reducing blood sugar, since high blood sugar increases the risk of heart disease; 5) Tackling triglycerides to differentiate good fats from the harmful.

This is an excellent guide that includes anecdotes, tips and even recipes to help protect us and the ones we love against heart disease. Making his five steps part of our daily routine can create a wellness that can help save our lives.

St. Patrick's Day Feast

St. Patrick's Day celebrates all things Irish, including the color green. Why not enjoy the holiday by going green and healthier with your traditional St. Patrick's Day feast?

Corned beef and cabbage is a favorite meal on St. Patrick's Day, but some folks may want to cut back on the fat and calories. Brisket is naturally high in fat, but there are ways to reduce it. One way is to trim away any excess fat from the meat before it is cooked. Another is to cook the meat a day ahead of time and refrigerate it. Once the meat cools, the fat will harden and can be skimmed off.

The type of brisket you buy also makes a difference. A flat half brisket would have 191 calories and 6 grams of fat per 3.5 ounce serving. The same amount of point half brisket has 244 calories and nearly 14 grams of fat. Whole brisket has 218 calories and 10 grams of fat. Leaving a 1/4-inch trim of fat almost doubles the calories in all of the brisket cuts. One of the lowest-calorie briskets is the one in which all the fat is trimmed.

Potatoes are another favorite Irish food. Potatoes are not very high in calories and have no fat, but making them with lots of butter and high-fat milk adds fat. Keep the holiday tradition alive but reduce the calories by serving a side of Low-Fat Buttermilk Mashed Potatoes. The secret is the buttermilk, which adds a creamy texture and buttery flavor.

Save calories by baking two large potatoes in the oven or microwave, then quartering and peeling them (or leave the skins on if you'd like). Place the potatoes in a deep bowl and add 2 tablespoons of butter and 2/3 cup of 1/2 percent- or 1 percent-fat buttermilk. Use a potato masher or mixer to blend the potatoes. Season to taste.

Enjoy St. Patrick's Day with this tasty, but reduced-fat meal!

CORNED BEEF BRISKET WITH CABBAGE

2 stalks celery, halved
4 carrots
1 medium onion, cut in 4 wedges
1 4-pound corned beef brisket
2 tablespoons steak sauce
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon black pepper
4 to 6 cups low-sodium beef broth
1 tablespoon corned beef spices or pickling spices (or spices that come with the brisket)
1 medium head cabbage, cut into 6 wedges
Grainy mustard for serving

1. Place celery, carrots and onion in the bottom of a large slow-cooker or crock pot. Rinse the corned beef brisket. Season brisket and vegetables with the steak sauce, Worcestershire sauce, and salt and pepper. Place the brisket on top of the vegetables. Pour in the beef broth until it barely covers the brisket. Cover and cook on low for eight to nine hours.

2. Remove the meat and vegetables from the pot and cover with foil to keep warm. Increase heat to high and add the cabbage to the slow cooker. Cook cabbage until softened but still crispy, about 20 to 30 minutes.

3 . Remove any excess fat from the brisket. Slice brisket across the grain. Serve with the vegetables and the mustard and a side of the low-fat buttermilk mashed potatoes. Remove any excess fat from the cooking liquid. Pass the extra cooking liquid at the table. Serves 6 to 8.

TIP: Powdered buttermilk, which can be found in the baking section of the grocery store, allows you to use what you need without wasting the rest.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same Lender may hold more than one mortgage or Deed of Trust on the property. Notice to Property Owner The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the Mortgagee, Beneficiary, Trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code.
